Carolyn was an honor graduate of Joe E. Brown High School in Atlanta. She was elected senior superlative and graduation speaker, a delegate to the National DE Convention in Asheville, NC, and a winner of the Pan American League essay contest, which honored her with an all-expense paid trip to Havana, Cuba (before Castro).

Carolyn attended the University of Georgia in Athens and majored in Home Economics and Journalism. She was elected to Alpha Lambda Delta Freshman Honor Society, Home Economics Honor Society, and was the Senior Representative on the Women's Student Government. She remained active with her beloved Pi Beta Phi sorority throughout adulthood.

She met her husband Fred Jones, DVM, at UGA. They married and moved to Tampa in 1953, where Fred practiced veterinary medicine for nearly 40 years. Carolyn and Fred enjoyed their children, their children's friends and especially their close friends in Couples Club, the Specks, and Jus' Rite. With her signature Southern charm and great hostess and cooking skills, she loved to entertain and threw creative parties, especially for her children's birthdays! Carolyn was extremely organized and maintained 3x5 cards for every contact in her distinctive script, plus lists of all her party menus. She installed the first home copier (it was huge!) and sent weekly updates to her children away. She was also fun - when the men went hunting and fishing, Carolyn gathered the wives and went adventuring near and far. Fred died in 2004, shortly after their 50th anniversary.

In 2006 Carolyn reconnected with and married childhood friend, Richard McTyre. They enjoyed traveling in Georgia until his death in 2016.

Carolyn was a longtime active member of Palma Ceia United Methodist Church. She also was a ten-year Girl Scout leader, an avid bridge player and a member of the Tampa Junior Woman's Club, the 39ers, and the AVMA Auxiliary. Carolyn was an associate member of the Belleview United Methodist Church in Murphy, NC, and the Ailey United Methodist Church in Ailey, GA, the Ailey Garden Club, and the GA Keep America Beautiful campaign.

Her great love besides her family and friends was the Jones Farm in Mount Vernon, Georgia. Carolyn was hostess for over 30 Thanksgivings to the entire Jones family (up to 60 people), with many traveling from as far as Maryland, Texas, and Nebraska.

Surviving are Carolyn and Fred's four children and their families; Patrick and Lorraine Jones (Madison and Garrett), John and Jamie Jones Johnson (Cindy and CJ Guenzel, Robert, and Caroline and Ben Reyes; great grandchildren Callie, Quinn and Cooper Guenzel), Clayton Jones (Tanner and Emery), and Hamilton and Lori Jones (Cameron, Courtney, and Mackey). She is also survived by her brother Rufus Chambers and his wife Wicke of Atlanta, sister-in-law Mae Rowland Jones of Uvalda, and many nieces and nephews.

Carolyn's family owes an abundance of gratitude to Dr. Debbie St. Clair/Griffin Medical Group, the Abigail House ALF staff (in Hyde Park, Tampa), and Lifepath Hospice. All those who provided care for her were wonderful.
